The World's Fair directors effected a complete organization at their meeting Thursday afternoon, as told in late editions of the Post-Dispatch.

The officers were elected by acclamation and there was nothing to mar the harmony of the meeting.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon, May 8, at the Noonday Club, when the committee on organization will report upon the following questions:

Number and formation of standing committees.
Draft of bylaws of incorporation.
Suitable location for temporary offices.
As to director-general.
As to general counsel of the corporation.
The committee on organization is composed of the president, vice-presidents and treasurer.

The sentiment of Thursday's meeting was against further delay of the World's Fair site. No action regarding the World's Fair site was taken, but Treasurer Thompson stated that the bill allowing the use of the three big parks had passed the City Council and he expected it to pass the House of Delegates without delay.

"I hope no one will make any suggestions to the effect that the World's Fair shall be postponed," said Mr. Thompson. "We have started out to hold it in 1903 and will live up to the letter of our plan. I admit that the time is short, therefore there is need of real work."

The election of Walter B. Stevens, a St. Louis newspaper correspondent stationed at Washington, D. C., as secretary of the board, was made upon a motion by President Francis, seconded by Charles W. Knapp, W. C. Steiger, John Schreurs and Nicholas M. Bell.

James Cox was requested to act as secretary until Mr. Stevens shall have taken charge.

The one, two and three-year terms were drawn by lot. Fergus J. Wade acting as teller. Treasurer Thompson was the first director to draw the short term and he was vigorously applauded.

President Francis, before the meeting adjourned, gave a brief chronological survey of the preparations for the World's Fair. The first meeting of stockholders was held April 10, 1890. First meeting of directors, April 11, 1890. Officers elected. July 1, 1890. Work commenced on grounds. September, 1890; gates opened, May 1, 1893.

The first meeting of the board of directors was held April 10, 1890.

St. Louis, if the gates are opened on May 1, 1903, must do in two years what it required over three years to accomplish in Chicago.

Directors of the Chicago Exposition was held April 12, and the president was chosen April 20. The organization was not completed until July 11, following, when the secretaries were elected.

Chicago wasted much time trying to effect a dual site, consisting of the lake front and Jackson Park. The lake front was never used. The fair grounds, Jackson Park and the Midway Plaisance comprised 600 acres.

The first estimate of the cost at Chicago was $10,757,375. Dredging and filling, which began Feb. 11, 1891, cost $10,524.

The first building for which proposals were received was the Mines and Mining building. The contract was let May 23 following.

The contracts for the Manufactures and Liberal Arts, Horticultural, Woman's and Electrical Buildings were let in June, 1891, and for the Agricultural buildings the following month. For the Fisheries building the contract was let in August and for the Machinery Hall and Art building in October, 1891.

A commission was sent to Europe in 1891. Another commission went over in the fall of the same year.

INJUNCTION IS MADE PERMANENT

Judge Ryan's Decision in City Printing Cases.

CITY REGISTER ENJOINED CANNOT LET CONTRACTS WITH UNION LABOR CLAUSE.

City Counselor Schnurmacher's Demurrer Was Not Sustained by the Court and He Refused to Argue Case Further.

Judge Ryan issued a permanent injunction Friday preventing Patrick R. Fitzgibbon, city register, from granting contracts for city printing under the ordinance which provides that all such printing shall be done by union labor and shall bear the union label.

The petition for injunction was filed by Herman Haussner on behalf of the taxpayers of St. Louis. He alleged that the ordinance was unconstitutional, being class legislation. He contended that the issuance of contracts for public work should not be restricted by law to any particular class.

The occasion for the asking of the injunction was the advertisement by the City Council on April 24 for bids for the printing of assessment notices.

The petition was filed about a week ago. City Counselor Schnurmacher entered appearance for the city and the register, and on the hearing on the granting of a permanent injunction was set for Friday.

Schnurmacher then filed a demurrer contending that the petition did not set forth facts sufficient to make a case. Judge Ryan heard the arguments on the demurrer and refused to sustain it.

City Counselor Schnurmacher refused to plead further or argue the merits of the case.

Held for Assault to Kill. The prosecuting witness, Mrs. Catherine Clay, with whom Powers boarded at 1521 South Ninth street, was an unwilling witness. Her husband testified for the defendant.

April 23, so the evidence showed, Powers shot at Mrs. Clay and J. F. Nick, another boarder. He told the police at the time of his arrest that he was jealous of Nick.

LARGE REALTY DEALS MADE

BERLIN HEIGHTS FOR $250,000

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON THREE BLOCKS.

Next to the sale of the Catlin tract, the largest transaction in recent years was completed Friday by the Nicholls-Ritter Realty and Financial Co., wherein they sold the Berlin Heights property for $250,000.

The property lies between Taylor avenue on the east, Berlin avenue on the south, Euclid on the west and McPherson avenue on the north, comprising about 370 front feet, and was sold for account of the Berlin Heights Realty Co. to the C. R. H. Davis Real Estate Co.

This comprises all the property owned by the Berlin Heights Realty Co. excepting 10 feet on the north side of Berlin avenue about 500 feet west of Taylor avenue, which has heretofore been sold by the Nicholls-Ritter Realty and Financial Co. to Mrs. Jessie L. Ray and Jesse L. Boogher, and includes over 100 front feet on Berlin avenue, about 1500 feet on Lexov, a private street between Berlin and McPherson avenues, Walton and Euclid about 1000 feet on McPherson and 200 feet on Walton avenue.

The property formerly belonged to the Christian Brothers and was purchased by the Berlin Heights Realty Co. about a year and a half ago for $100,000.

At the time of the purchase it was rather unimproved, but the new owners, Thomas H. West, Robert McK. Jones, J. D. Filley and others immediately commenced to grade and make streets and

DECLINES WERE 4 TO 10 PER CENT

Entire Stock List Broke Heavily.

PROFIT - TAKING ENORMOUS

Atchison Common, St. Paul and Union Pacific Breaking, Carried Other Issues Downward Without a Check.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The effect of drawing in of credits on an over extended speculation was shown by a slump in the stock market this afternoon. In the effort to liquidate, prices broke violently throughout the list, with the largest effect naturally in those stocks in which the mad rush to buy had centered for the last few days.

As the last candidate for this kind of favor, Atchison led the van. During this morning there was a halcyon prospect of indefinite prices in this stock and hordes of speculators were using all the money they could borrow to buy the stock on a margin.

The way in which Atchison and other stocks mounted skyward relieved the apprehension remaining from the rather reactionary tendency of yesterday's market and confidence came back to the speculators that the flurry was over and it was time to renew the tactics of buy, buy, buy.

As prices melted away their nervousness grew to alarm and they began to order stocks sold in a hurry. The new demand had relaxed as the reaction began to give promise that buyers might get much lower prices. The professional bears lent potential aid to the downward movement.

On the floor of the exchange there was great excitement and the brokers, fagged and weary with the long strain of the great bull market, found themselves in the midst of a new form of excitement. Any one willing to buy stocks were almost torn to pieces, where a few hours before all the pressure was on the seller.

As for the outside speculators, there were not enough messengers available, and the telephone service was inadequate to a time to get their selling orders to the exchange.

The proportions of the slump are indicated by the following principal declines: Atchison, 8 1/2; St. Paul, 9; Rock Island, 5 1/2; Northern Pacific, 8; Baltimore & Ohio, 4 1/2; Union Pacific, 7 1/2; Missouri Pacific, 4 1/2; New York Central, 4 1/2; Illinois Central, 3 1/2; Wabash, preferred, 3 1/2; Sugar, 4; Atchison, 10; and practically all other stocks between 1 and 4 points.

A rebound which followed was almost equally violent. The bears had been so long in the market that their eagerness to cover and take quick profits at the decline caused some frantic buying.

The rally reached 4 1/2 in Union Pacific, 4 1/2 in Atchison and St. Paul, 4 in Rock Island and Northern Pacific, 3 1/2 in Rock Island, 3 1/2 in Missouri Pacific, 3 in Manhattan and 1 to 4 points in many other stocks.

The excitement abated considerably after the rally, but prices wavered in an uncertain manner, declining in some cases again to within a fraction of the lowest. The tone continued very feverish until the close.

DRY SUNDAY FOR KANSAS CITY

Mrs. Carrie Nation's Agitation Causes Mayor Reed to Issue a Stringent Order.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 3.—As a direct result of Mrs. Carrie Nation's agitation of the question in Kansas City, Mayor Reed has issued a positive order that all saloons must be closed tight on Sundays. Yesterday afternoon the police commissioners refused the demand of a special committee of the Law and Order League to enforce the Sunday closing law and the league decided to call the "Tom Ford" place, consisting of 38 acres, which was purchased at $180,000, and sold for $100,000 in less than 15 months time. They also handled the North Park place of 7 1/2 acres on which stood the old Morris mansion.

Canada Still Unknown. Practically Nothing is Known of One-third of Her Immense Domain.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The director of the geological survey of Canada, in his last report, makes the amazing statement that practically nothing is known of one-third of the dominion. So states United States Consul Seyfert, at Stratford, in a report to the state department. It is shown that more than 1,200,000 square miles of Canadian territory is yet unexplored. This includes the impenetrable detached Arctic portions, but aside from these fully 3,000 square miles are for all practical purposes entirely unknown.

The eastern area contains the greater extent of unexplored territory. It comprises almost the entire interior of the Labrador peninsula. The indications are that during the next five years at least 500,000 miles of new railroad will be completed throughout the dominion, most of which will run through the unexplored wilderness, as it is recognized that railroads are essential to the opening up of this vast territory. The material wealth of this region is said to be undreamed of, while the dense forests of hardwood are expected to become a source of large profit.

CITY DOOR MATS RECOVERED.

Disappeared From City Hall and Found in a Saloon.

The City Hall has recovered its stolen door mats. A few days ago two rubber mats six feet long disappeared from the entrance. Friday afternoon they were discovered in a saloon across the street.

Building Commissioner Longfellow, as a condition of door mats sent to the saloon that unless the mats were returned by 12 o'clock there would be trouble. Before the hour mentioned the mats were mysteriously restored to their places.

ELEVEN BLOCKS BLAZING AT 3 P. M.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 3.—A terrible fire has been raging here for two hours.

At 2 o'clock several blocks of buildings in the business portion of the town had been destroyed, and the flames had spread to the residence portion of the city.

Over 100 houses are believed to have been burned, and citizens are tearing down buildings wherever possible to prevent the spread of the flames. All neighboring towns have been wired to send help.

The wind is blowing almost a gale, and at 3 o'clock the fire is beyond control. The flames already cover an area of nearly 12 blocks.

3:15 p. m.—The fire is rapidly eating its way toward the heart of the downtown business district. The Windsor Hotel, one of the largest in the town, is at this time in imminent danger. Among the manufacturing plants destroyed is that of the Cleveland Fiber Co.

No loss of life has been reported. Jacksonville is the most populous and important city of Florida, well-known to many persons of the North, for the reason that it is a popular winter resort.

The city is 20 miles from the sea, on the St. Johns river. It has 25 churches, several banks, daily newspapers and many public and private schools, and large hotels. The population is 23,000.

Twelve bookies had all they could do to take the money. Among the visitors at the track this afternoon was Kit Chinn, who got in this morning. The ex-starter brought out of his string with him, and they are now housed at the track. In the bunch is Duellist, fresh from his recent victory at Memphis.

Mr. Chinn is confident of winning the inaugural with this one. Much interest was centered in Sherbee's entry, Schwalbe, a half sister to Otis, in preparation for the coming season, who is expected to make Barney famous as a breeder.

FATHER GETS ETHEL DAWSON

Judge Douglas Decides He Is Best Custodian.

MOTHER PLEADED FOR HER

CHILD WAS UNWILLING TO LEAVE MRS. DAWSON.

Dramatic Scenes Attended Efforts of Parents to Induce Her to Abide by the Decree of Circuit Court.

A court's decree, rendered by Judge
Douglas, of the St. Louis circuit court, has been made known to Mrs. Dawson, the mother of the child, who is now in the custody of her father, Judge
Douglas.

The decree giving the father the custody of the child was made known to Mrs.
Dawson by Judge Douglas, two days before Dawson had instituted habeas corpus proceedings against his wife, Minnie Dawson, asking possession of little Ethel.

He charged that she had run away from him, leaving her child in the hands of her father, and that she had been in the habit of staying out late at night.

On the witness stand Mrs. Dawson admitted that she had run away from her husband and had come to St. Louis and that she had been in the habit of staying out late at night.

"You are not fit person to have the care of the child," said Judge Douglas,
"according to your own statement."

Mother Pleaded
for Her Child.

"But if I should do better after this, couldn't I ever have her back?" pleaded the woman. "I have always been kind to her."

"The court will always be glad to hear you and consider your rights," said Judge
Douglas.

Dawson, after the trial was over, told the Post-Dispatch that his wife's story about his staying out late at night was true and that he now saw how it had caused her trouble.

"I'm a hotel man," he said, "employed at the Great Northern. My work keeps me close during the day and I used to go out and have a game of billiards or something like that in the evening."

When Judge Douglas announced that the father should have the custody of the child, Dawson started to take his daughter's hand and leave the courtroom. She jumped from him crying and ran to her mother.

Dawson stood and looked at her for a while. Then she walked down and where the father and child were standing and took Ethel by the hand.

They continued down Broadway to Pine street. There they stopped and began to argue. Ethel ran to the curb and began to jump from it and to laugh.

The father and mother talked and gestured until a policeman's attention was attracted.

They started up Pine street with the little girl between them. Every body they stopped and talked.

Dramatic Scene
Attended Separation.

At Twelfth street they turned south to Chestnut street. There they had a heated discussion lasting 15 minutes. Then, while the child played in front of a store, Dawson finally told his wife that he thought they had better return to the court and see if the matter could not be settled up there.

The mother took the child in her arms then and the trial took place across Twelfth street to Olive street and down
Olive to a bakery at 107 Olive street.

They tried to separate there. Little Ethel would not leave her mother. The father took her from her pocket a small handful of coins and gave them to her, but she resisted him less violently.

The mother, who had at last been reconciled to the parting, talked to the child and tried to induce her to go.

"Come with me, please," said the father.
"We will go in here and get ice cream and candy."

Mrs. Dawson started east on Olive street.
Dawson and his daughter entered the bakery and sat down at a table.

The mother stood at Tenth and Olive streets for several minutes gazing behind her and weeping. Then she went on down the street to the Custom House.

SALVATION ARMY GIRL'S MODEST WEARS AND SPEAKING EYES INVITE DONATIONS

Capt. Bessie Brown Stations Herself at the Postoffice on Paydays and Many Respond to Her
Mute Appeal.

In the Ninth street corridor of the Federal building, just outside the entrance to the postoffice cashier's division, a rarely beautiful woman stood for four hours
Friday morning.

Few passers-by tried to resist the temptation to let their eyes wander towards her, so marked in her beauty, but the young woman never raised her downcast eyes or suffered a smile to spread over her sad sweet, Madonna-like face—except when a coin was dropped into a small box she held in her right hand.

The young woman's name is Bessie Brown—Capt. Bessie Brown she is officially called—the prettiest young woman the Salvation Army has stationed in St. Louis for many months or years.

She uses her beauty to attract contributions to the army's exchequer.
She does her duty on paydays, on paydays only. There are five of them each month—the 1st, 3d, 5th and last days—and on these days Capt. Brown stands at the portals of Cashier Bunder's little office for eight or nine hours while she has her little box ready for contributions and her face is a picture of beauty.

She is of medium height and slender.
Her hair is dark and wavy, and her eyes are her most attractive feature. They are large, dark and luminous—eyes that cause many of the postoffice pedestrians to stop and look—and then contribute to the army.

Her slender, little sister of the poor, and on recent pay days they have stood on one side of the door of the cashier's office with their somber garb of black and distinctive headpiece, contrasting picturesquely with the red and blue bonnet and the more conventional dress of the young captain.

"I do not consider collecting at the postoffice different from collecting at other places in Chicago when I was stationed there. I would go out to the car shops where several hundred men were employed, on payday, and I would get a good deal of money.
One day I collected $5 there. Of course, I do not collect that much at the postoffice, but I get a good many contributions there,
and everything I get helps to support and encourage the army."

"I like the army work, although it is hard and discouraging sometimes.

"The title 'Commander of Post No. 6,' seems strangely inappropriate to Capt. Bessie Brown. She is thoroughly gentle in manner. Her voice is soft and melodious, and she possesses the embodiment of daintiness, modesty and refinement."

OVER THE BROAD PLAINS OF TEXAS

The Presidential Train Stops at Houston.

MET BY GOVERNOR OF STATE

PARADE THROUGH STREETS AND ADDRESSES MADE.

Last Night in the Valley of the Mississippi Swarms of Mosquitoes Annoyed the Distinguished Party.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 2.—The Presidential special was skimming over the flat, broad plains of Texas when the President and his party awoke this morning. Houston was reached at 8:15, and the party was welcomed by Gov. Sayers, who had come from the state capital at Austin for that purpose.

There was a carriage ride about town, then exercises and speech-making at the Auditorium.

The ladies of the party were met by the ladies' reception committee and conducted to the hotel, from which they viewed the parade.

Gov. Sayers and staff accompanied the party to Austin this afternoon, where an informal banquet to the president and his cabinet will be given.

After leaving New Orleans last night, the presidential special ran through swarms of mosquitoes, which seemed to make as good time as the train did, and many distinguished countenances bear the marks of battle this morning.

MOSE KEETO & CO. HAVE ARRIVED

TO SPEND THE SUMMER

AND THERE'S WOE IN THE SUBURBS

The 1901 Delegation Is Particularly Large and Exasperatingly Busy and Ferguson and Other Towns Are Complaining Lustily.

Mosquitoes in extraordinary numbers, swarms extraordinary in size, the catagorized and the uncatalogued species, the mosquito who presents his bill on the first of the month and the gourmand mosquito who dines whenever the table is set, has arrived in town—especially in the suburbs.

He has arrived for the summer, with two suits of clothes and a change of linen; and so have his sisters and his cousins and his aunts.

He and they—have come unusually early this year, without any special invitation.

They have gathered about the mosquito population from Jaytown, N. J., to a point near Ferguson, St. Louis County.

But the other suburbs have their share of the intruders. On all points on the Suburban front—especially about Normandy and Lake Ramona—they are particularly and distressingly visible to the eye, and to the nose.

Their song reverberates through the woods. It is a pretty song, with a subtle truth hidden in the music of words.

You cannot eat breakfast all day.

Not in the act of a dinner.

When breakfast is taken at dinner.

To turn your attention to dinner.

Why did he come at all? Why did he come so early? Why did he make a family party of it and bring all his poor harassed relatives along? And how long is he going to stay?—are questions the suburbs are asking each other coming down in the cars in the morning.

In the evenings going home they try to tell the suburbs that this year's mosquitoes are the best.

It's in the morning that this year's mosquitoes are the best.

At the time he should be taking his "beauty sleep" he is up, earning his daily bread by the sweat of the suburban brow.

Any honest self-respecting mosquito ought to be in bed at 8 o'clock, a. m., but this neophyte mosquito seems lost to all sense of decency and moral bankruptcy.

He knows his business too, and gathers about the railway stations, where the bill of fare is cheap and varied.

The lady passengers are taking their fans with them in the morning, and gentlemen are carrying their walking sticks and umbrellas to ward him off. The farmers are roving their rifles to hitting nests to prevent them being carried off, and altogether the suburbanite is living a strenuous life, all on account of the miserable little pest.

Out at Lake Ramona, the mosquito has superseded all other topics of conversation.

At Ferguson they say Mr. Watson's reason for the railway station, where the bill of fare is cheap and varied.

MR. ROOT'S CODE

ONLY BY ITS USE CAN THE SECRETARY BE SEEN.

SENATOR FORAKER'S GOOD LUCK

In Founding the Door He Accidentally Struck It and Obtained Admittance.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Secretary Root is so well pleased with the success of his scheme for barring out callers by locking the door and admitting only those who are acquainted with a certain cipher knock that he now has the doors locked at 2 o'clock instead of 3.

The new scheme worked like a charm, and senators, representatives, tourists, and other unwelcome callers have gone up against the door without result, because they did not know the secret code. Since the lock-out has been placed at 2 o'clock instead of 3 the casualties have been even greater, although no cabinet officer has fallen a victim since the memorable occasion when Secretary Hay tried all the knocks he knew.

Yesterday, however, Senator Foraker triumphed over the door without the faintest knowledge of the open sesame, and he has been chuckling over his victory ever since. The countersign knock has by this time become a matter of notoriety to congressmen, so many of them having fallen victims to it. Accordingly, when Mr. Foraker arrived at the war department yesterday afternoon and found the doors locked, he knew what he meant and frowned. The stories his colleagues had told of their vain efforts to learn the countersign flashed across his mind. He had taken pains to get there before 3 o'clock so as to avoid the usual defeat, and yet the doors were locked. He knew that behind it were three sturdy colored men, who would listen complacently to his futile knocks and never stir toward the doorknob. Nay, more, they would probably grin.

But Mr. Foraker is not out to give in easily. He frowned again, bit his lip, and dashed his fist ferociously against the door. Then he listened, and thought he heard a faraway chuckle on the other side. His scowl grew deeper and he rattled the doorknob impotently, conscious that a group of newspaper men, sworn to secrecy about the correct fraternity knock, were regarding him gravely and that the secretaries' men were chuckling on the other side.

Then Mr. Foraker stepped away and thought for a moment. His anger overcame him, and he decided to return and give a few hammer blows on the door just to express his opinion of it. Accordingly he raised his fist and gave it would never do to tell how many knocks he gave, or in what way he gave them, but he knocked in an unusual way. This was simply because he was angry.

As the last knock rang out, an answering knuckle sounded on the inside. Mr. Foraker, deeming this mere sarcasm, hit the door again. To his intense astonishment it flew open, and a bowing attendant stood before him, inviting him to the secretary's presence. He had accidentally hit on the right knock. As for the attendant, who had supposed it to be a war department clerk, he was dumfounded.

"Walk right in, Senator," he gasped. And as the senator vanished in the secretary's room, he caught the words: "How did he ever learn that knock?" Mr. Foraker came out of the secretary's room beaming all over, after a most satisfactory interview. He has done something that few other visitors have accomplished. Only one thing bothers him now—he wishes he could remember that knock.

Are a number of letters about a remedy known as Pazo Pile Ointment. These letters are from different people residing in various portions of the country, who have all been sufferers from Piles, for from ten to fifty years, and who, one and all, testify to the fact that while they have used different remedies at different times, no relief was afforded them until they tried Pazo Pile Ointment. Pazo Pile Ointment is manufactured by the Paris Medicine Co. of this city, who also manufacture the widely known cold prescription, Laxative Bromo Quinine. The price for Pazo Ointment is 50 cents a box, and they agree to refund the money in every instance where it fails to cure.

SEEKING LONG-LOST RELATIVES

William Manning Has Not Seen Any of Them in Forty Years.

William Manning of Hamburg, Calhoun County, Ill., is desirous of ascertaining if any of his relatives are living. He is 49 years of age and has not seen any member of his immediate family for nearly forty years. Mr. Manning says he was born in St. Louis and that when he was a small boy his father, Patrick Manning, died. His mother afterwards married a man named Edward Fitzsimmons and removed to Cairo, Ill. Manning says he accompanied them to Cairo, but left their home when the war broke out and became a newspaper, selling papers in Memphis and other places. He has never heard from or of a relative since and has invoked the aid of the Post-Dispatch in locating any of them who may be alive.

GOOD THING FOR CYCLERS.

Morrow Coaster Makes Going Down Hill a Joy Forever.

The notion that the bicycle trade is greatly on the decline seems to be dispelled by the great demand for the Morrow coaster and brake, made by the Eclipse Manufacturing Co. Last year 135,000 of these devices were sold. This year the demand has increased. By means of this attachment the wheelman can coast down a hill with his feet on the pedals, which cease to revolve, and when he desires to stop, a slight backward pressure sets the brake automatically.

SUGAR TAX WILL STAY.

LONDON, May 2.—Replying to a deputation from the Workmen's and Sugar Tax Association today, the chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Michael Hicks-Beach, declined to consider the withdrawal of the sugar tax. He said it was the most important part of the present budget and he did not believe that workmen who had approved of the war in South Africa objected to pay some thing toward the cost.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

Knew Something Besides What He Read in Books.

The wise, up-to-date, modern doctor is no longer tied down to the hard and fast rules of what his medical books say he shall use and what he may withhold in treating his patient.

The successful doctor nowadays is the one who is quick to avail himself of any remedy, new or old which holds out a chance of cure no matter whether it is Allopathic, Homeopathic or neither one.

Dr. Jennison, in an interesting article on indigestion and dyspepsia says: "Nine-tenths of all people who apply to me for advice and treatment think they have this ailment or that ailment, but I find that on close examination that their whole trouble arises from poor digestion."

"They have little appetite and if they do have an appetite the food they eat does them no good. Why? Because it is but half digested, causing thin blood; weak nerves, sleeplessness, aching bones, pains in chest, formation of gases, belching, etc. They tell me they believe they have consumption or heart disease, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact, most every disease but the right one."

"In reality the whole trouble is in the stomach and nowhere else. Now what do I do with such people? I don't feed them on predigested foods like babies; nor 'stomach bitters' nor patent nostrums which I know nothing about. No honorable physician will prescribe a remedy unless he knows what it contains and its probable effects. For all such patients I have but one prescription. I advise them to go to the nearest drug store and get a 50 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I use them with remarkable success in all cases of indigestion and stomach trouble, because I know what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets consist of and what they will do. They contain the vegetable essences, diastase and government-test pepsin which are the things every weak stomach lacks to restore natural digestive vigor and if I had dyspepsia myself it is the one remedy I should take."

"When a patient comes to me complaining of dull headaches, sour stomach, bad taste, nervousness, belching of gas, or heart trouble which is generally caused from indigestion I tell him to take one or two of Stuart's Tablets after each meal and as often during the day as he has any trouble and I feel confident that I have given that patient the best advice I could give."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are large, pleasant tasting lozenges, containing diastase and pepsin combined with fruit and vegetable essences. They are not cathartic and do not act on any particular organ like ordinary drugs, but simply act entirely on the food eaten. They are a natural digestive, pure and simple.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by druggists at 50 cents per package throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

A MUNICIPAL LIGHTING PLANT.

The inquiry into the practicability of a municipal electric plant to light the public buildings is a gratifying sign of progress.

"The lighting question will be considered and discussed until a practical, economic solution shall have been discovered and applied," says Mayor Wells. "I have studied the matter for some time, and I am now of the opinion that the city can save money by installing its own generating plants and lighting public buildings."

The estimate of the Board of Public Improvements indicates an annual saving in the cost of service of some $10,000. At this rate the plant would pay for itself in less than five years.

If this estimate can be verified, and there is no reason to doubt its approximate accuracy, a municipal plant can be installed at the expiration of the present contracts, Aug. 31. It will be a substantial improvement in every respect, besides a suggestion of further progress along the same lines.

The Texas State Federation of Commercial Clubs is working to bring about a great Texan exhibit for the World's Fair. The Empire State of the South has never before had so good an opportunity to make the world acquainted with its boundless resources.

THE SPECULATING MANIA.

If, by any fortunate combination of circumstances, the country should come out of the present speculative mania with but slight injury, the thoughtful and public spirited business men will do well to devise means to prevent its repetition.

The line between legitimate trading and reckless speculation must be drawn more clearly, so that the exchanges shall be able to maintain that condition of calm thought and action which should characterize merchants and agents who have their own and other persons' interests at stake.

What is wanted is the arousing of the public conscience to the wrong and folly of prostituting trade and industry to a mere mad rush for dollars. This degradation has never failed to bring its own punishment. Can it be possible that at this time cause and effect will not bear the same relation as they have done in times past?

The World's Fair of 1903 can be made greater than any World's Fair of the past and at the same time be quite different from its predecessors in other respects. We must have an Exposition well worth a journey from the ends of the earth to look upon.

A HUMOROUS RULE.

One of the new transfer rules set up by the transit company is chock full of humor.

A passenger asking for a transfer must say what car he wants to take. There may be a dozen lines converging towards his destination, but he must elect one, and wait if necessary until eleven cars shall have passed, before he can proceed on his journey.

Thus, as a correspondent relates in another column, you are on an Eighteenth street car and want to go to Third street. At the intersection of Eighteenth and Washington avenue the cars of the Page avenue, Delmar avenue, Union Depot and perhaps several others pass east. But you must say which one you prefer. If you think the Page avenue car is the best, you choose one of them and then watch half a dozen of other lines almost as nice pass on while you wait your unhappy choice.

It's delicious. It will make the whole town gay—except when the town rides on transit cars.

The St. Louis firm that is to build the great works of the Westhouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. in England, at a cost of $2,000,000, will give our British friends a good idea of what can be done by the builders of the World's Fair City.

DEPOPULATION OF IRELAND.

The British Government may look forward to a settlement of the Irish question through the depopulation of Ireland. In the year 1900 47,107, or 10.3 per 1000 of the population, emigrated, being an increase of 3347 as compared with the number in 1899.

Isn't it strange that people should be so eager to leave a country they love so well as the Irish love Ireland? From May 1, 1851, to Dec. 31, 1900, 2,541,419 emigrants left the green isle.

According to the census of 1851 the population of Ireland was 6,574,278. In 1901 it is less than 4,500,000. During these five decades the population of England has more than doubled.

When all the Irish are gone, then there will be peace in Ireland. There's no doubt about that. But is it state-manship which settles questions in this singular fashion?

It is hoped that the Rainbow City may have a pot of gold when her Pan-American comes.

WHAT TWO WOMEN HAVE DONE.

Misses Catherine Goggin and Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' Federation have won a great victory in their fight for the taxation of franchise.

A writ of mandamus was granted by the Sangamon County Circuit Court ordering the State Board of Equalization to assess the franchises of the Chicago Street Railway, gas and electric light companies. If the decision is sustained by the Supreme Court the assessment of 23 Chicago corporations will be raised from $20,000,000 to $240,000,000.

Judge Thompson in his decision asked the Board in the severest terms. "The practice of this board as appears from the published report of its proceedings in the year 1900, and previous years has been to ignore franchise values altogether in the assessment of capital stock of corporations. Franchisees are special privileges granted by the governing power, they are, under the law, personal property, and in many instances, property of great value. They, like all other forms of property, are subject to taxation." Then followed a stinging rebuke to the members of the board for their neglect of duty.

The two lone school teachers are doing a great and good work for Chicago. Let us hope that in Missouri it will never be necessary to call upon pedagogical talent to compel a just enforcement of our franchise tax law.

How to get the money to increase the salaries of the teachers in the public schools is more difficult to determine than it is to pass upon the justice of their claim for an advance. Every capable teacher should be well paid, and this will undoubtedly be done when the city shall have been managed for a time upon strictly business principles.

THE WORLD'S FAIR ORGANIZATION.

The first meeting of the board of directors for the organization of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company was marked by a promptness, unanimity and wisdom of action that gives fair promise for the future.

In the selection of officers the directors were of one mind, the reason for which is made clear by a consideration of the result. The special fitness of each officer chosen is manifest to those who know the men and their work for the World's Fair.

The election of David R. Francis gave the chief executive office to the man who has been the head and front of the World's Fair movement and whose forceful qualities are indispensable to the enterprise. William H. Thompson, the treasurer, has been the financial engineer of the World's Fair project, to whose skill and determination the successful working out of the financial problems have been largely due.

Walter B. Stevens, the secretary, is a newspaper correspondent of ability and wide reputation, who will bring to his task experience, trained capacity and a special knowledge of the management of other world's fairs which will be of great value. In the list of vice-presidents are Corwin H. Spencer, Samuel M. Leonard, Daniel M. Houser, Cyrus P. Wadsworth, Seth W. Cobb, Charles H. Huttig, August Gehner and Pierre Chouteau—all men of high standing and capacity who are distinguished by solid contributions to the success of the World's Fair movement.

The officers are representative not only of St. Louis, but of the entire city and ability have made the World's Fair a possibility and brought it to the beginning of the practical work of building. The selections undoubtedly have the indorsement of the stockholders and the community.

The start in the organization of the World's Fair is good. The completion of the working force along the same lines of harmony and wisdom will lay the foundations of success.

With 12,000 Americans going to make homes in Canada in 1900, and only 450 of us going to Cuba in that year, why should we not annex Canada? Have not the Canadians, by adhering to the obsolete monarchy idea, shown themselves unfit for self-government, and should not all people unfit for self-government be benevolently assisted?

As only citizens of the United States are admitted to practice in the United States Supreme Court, and as a citizen of Porto Rico has just been admitted to practice in that court, it is inferred that a citizen of Porto Rico is a citizen of the United States. Our violated constitution appears to be getting very close to the flag.

It is telegraphed from Washington that President McKinley has decided against tariff changes in the next Congress. If the American consumer is not yet accustomed to being skinned, how is he ever to be happy under the operation?

The Orient knows even more about beans than Boston knows. In China, after the oil has been extracted from beans, they are compressed into large cakes and used as a fertilizer. The Japanese cannot do without these cakes.

Missouri apple trees are being shipped to New England. The quality of "apple sass" as the New Englanders call it, is a matter of some importance. The "apple sass" produced from the fruit of Missouri trees will be a delight and a nourishment to him.

The Rothschild opinion that the St. Louis region is one of the best for investment will be emphasized by the success of the World's Fair. Let us leave nothing undone to make the great Exposition all that it ought to be.

A band of whooping savages would doubtless pause in wonder at the wild yelling and the crazing din in the New York Stock Exchange while imaginary values are being exalted.

"I tell you, Morgan's a great man," says Senator Hanna. The latest jump in anthracite coal has doubtless helped to excite Mr. Hanna's admiration.

With a jump of more than a million and a half in St. Louis building permits we appear to be getting the World's Fair gait.

The great battleships are helping to exhaust a coal supply which is most needed in the industries.

All the new alleys and streets should be paved with a view to automobile possibilities.

President McKinley should telephone his apprehensions to Wall street.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

Emotion is the music of the soul and hysteria is its maddest rhythm. The publisher said: "A woman is like her garden; the more beautiful she looks, the harder some man has to dig."

It would have been a severe blow to the world if all the ancient martyrs had been burned in private.

The average man would rather be declared a lunatic ten times than to have his love letters read in court once.—New York Press.

JUST LIKE A MAN.

"Oh, no; she's not at all what you would call a really feminine woman. She affects masculine ways."

"How?"

"Well, for instance, yesterday I saw her give a street car conductor a nickel when she had five pennies in her purse."—Chicago Post.

Keep right on kicking—never mind the hindering folks utter; The frog in the churn kicked up a pound of butter.

Street car accidents continue the spring fashion, along with mumps. The motorman is not so much to blame as police reports indicate. So long as would-be passengers continue to grab at moving cars as though they were plucking peacocks, they will continue.

It is not good policy to try boarding a car while the car is making up its mind to stop. The car will stop, but the passenger will not.

The letter carriers are contemplating a parade in shirtwaists to popularize that garment. It is a most ingenious idea.

Quite unlike the methods of designers of apparel, who would have you possess occult powers of forecasting the fashions. The designer doesn't predict taste—he forces it by making up an article and cramming it down the throat of the consumer.

If all saloon keepers were like the late Thomas C. Brennan of St. Louis there would be no further work for Carrie Nation. Mrs. Brennan smashed his own saloon and shot to pieces the saloon of a neighbor. He was a saloon keeper and wanted to get out of it.

When a friend refused to accept his saloon as a place of business, Mrs. Brennan turned his bartender out, locked the doors and Nathaniel Brennan was a saloon keeper no more.

This saloon keeper acts a perilous precedent for the future. He has shown us that a saloon keeper can be a man of business and a man of honor.

Every day old ideals and conventions are shattered, and life is becoming pleasanter for pioneers of everything. Had inventor Alcedas Farmer, originator of the new "Electric Vacuum Light," lived in the 50 years ago and created the sensation he did Monday night at Eighteenth street and Russell avenues, they would have prescribed a straightjacket for him. Nowadays they merely call out the fire and police departments and put enthusiastic investors in the cooler.

In the good old days they would have excommunicated him for heretic or barbed him for schismatic—shaking the dice for choice of punishments.

THE MAN WITHOUT A HEART
By J. Christian Bay.

THERE was once a wise man. His knowledge was so profound that he might have invented powder or discovered America if he had cared to. For never was known in his day. His thought was, however, far from the welfare of others, and all that he cared about was to be left alone with his studies, by which means he hoped to gain perfect happiness.

He was well aware that Fortune had not a bag of money, nor good eating and drinking. By his ardent and diligent studies he had discovered that Fortune was, indeed, a great power of the world. Lightning or manna, he declared that it should be his one day or another.

Early and late he studied in nature, and in old, curious books, with which his room was filled. He often disturbed by persons who wished to consult him on important matters, and he was often annoyed by a wish to see a great many poor persons came to his door asking for a kind word or a smile. He could spare neither, however.

Whenever a poor wretch or motherless child called him away from his books for a short while he was annoyed. On one occasion he was annoyed by a wish to see a great many poor persons came to his door asking for a kind word or a smile. He could spare neither, however.

When at home this wise man was, as a rule, occupied by his books, and he was mixing the most remarkable things. One day he mixed a small quantity of a white liquid and was in the act of carrying out a very important experiment. He had just poured three drops of a green fluid into the pot. Instantly a white steam arose, spread itself above the fire, and assumed the shape of a ghost, surrounded by a large head with a pale, colorless countenance, large, round eyes and a broad mouth.

The old sage was struck with astonishment, and wondered at this figure which he had never seen before.

"What do you wish for?" asked the figure of the ghost.

"What do I wish for?" repeated the student of the sciences. "Fortune has left me in my desire."

"Explain what you mean by Fortune," said the ghost.

"Fortune," began the other, "is a power of nature, and it is a power of nature."

"He," cried the ghost. "Do you wish for money?"

"No," answered the wise man; "the greatest happiness is to have no heart. I wish to be without a heart."

"I will take your heart," said the spirit. "I will take it, and hide it so well that it will never be found."

"Yes, and I shall rejoice to be rid of it," said the wise man.

The old sage vanished, and the pot boiled away. The wise man felt a cold touch at the left side of his chest, and he knew that the ghost had taken his heart.

Since that day he lived much more peacefully and was able to see the greatest wealth and distress without feeling the least trouble. He thought himself happier than all other men, and he was content to live in his studies undisturbed.

In the same country there lived a king who had two sons. They were ready to marry, and the youngest of them was especially so. He was a handsome young man, and his father was advanced in age and he was to be his successor. It was decided that the two young men should go into the wide world and seek their wives in the distant lands.

The king wished to keep one of them to assist him in his duties, but the youngest son had been a great deal of time in the world, and he wished to go away alone, as the king wished to keep one of them to assist him in his duties.

The king's youngest son left home and walked far away, until he reached a house in a large forest, where the wise man without a heart lived. He was a handsome young man, and he was to be his successor. It was decided that the two young men should go into the wide world and seek their wives in the distant lands.

HOW THE BASEBALL GAME APPEARS TO THE POET-ARTIST

BY A POST-DISPATCH MAN.

Behold the Fan,
The frantic hunchball Fan!
He sits and screams,
He haws and bleaches,
Acquiring cheeks of tan—
This Fan-Tan Man!

The sun is hot,
But what
Is a little thing like that
When Jesse Burkett's bat
Kerplunks the sphere
Into the middle of next year?
This Fan doth cheer
And wren his new straw hat!

When Donovan takes a slide
From third to home,
This Fan-Tan Man's beside
Himself with glee, and splits the dome
Of heaven with a shriek,
Until his lungs grow weak
With "Go it, Fats!"
Now, then, that a
Good buy! slide!
And when he hits home-plate
Upon his pate,
The Fan is satisfied!

When Dan McGinnis
The handy first-bag man,
Takes in his big mitt
A hot-rod hit,
This bleacher man gets on his feet
And yawns in most complete Abandon,
Till echo doth repeat
His yawn the great grand-stand on!

And when somebody muffs,
This Fan-Tan Man
With race become yellow
And calls the players duffs
And lechers, tanks and toughs;
And when a favorite
Flies out to left or right,
With bitter we and pain
This sun-tanned Fan doth go insane,
And he doth rend and tear
His hatless hair
In vain.
Despair!

That night
This most enthusiastic wight
Retakes him to bed
And hath his vocal chords repaired;
So that the next day he (Wide-eyed and louse-haired)
May see
The game and yell
Like everything!

"Calls the Players Duffs and Lobsters."

"When Burkett's Bat Kerplunks the Sphere."

TEXAS CROWD OF HORSEMEN IS PICKING THE WINNERS

AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

Turns Up Good Things With Wonderful Regularity and Has Plenty of Money Which It Handles Judiciously.

FRIDAY'S SELECTIONS:

First Race—Maggie Clopton, Queen

Burlington, All Mine.

Second Race—C. P. Jones, Windward,

Chopin.

Third Race—Ardita, Varner, Jim

Scanlon.

Fourth Race—Lindonella, Wax Taper,

Maximus.

Fifth Race—Fred Hessig, Miss Aubrey, Dandy Jim.

Sixth Race—Belle Simpson, Barbee,

Lawton.

The Texas crowd is doing well at the Fair Grounds. It is turning up good things with wonderful regularity and is making big winnings on all of them.

They have plenty of money and are handling it judiciously.

But the betting at the Fair Grounds would be lively if the Texans were not there. Everybody who goes there seems to have money and plays it freely. The bookmakers have all they can do.

The sport was satisfactory Thursday.

The crowd was small, but it was enthusiastic in all the events. The fields were generally small, but there were several exciting finishes to satisfy the spectators.

In the first race Tenny Belle was favorite at 2 to 1, while Sam Lazarus was held at 7 to 2. At the drop of the flag Tenny Belle rushed to the front with Sam Lazarus near her. In the stretch she began to sever, but lasted just long enough to win by a length. Sam Lazarus was second and Echo Dale third.

In the second race Otis, owned by Barney Schreiber, furnished the principal excitement of the day, winning easily in a canter by two lengths, with Kalamazoo second and Baby Dixon third. Otis was backed from 6 to 3 to 1. Barney Schreiber stated after the race that Otis is the best horse he ever owned.

PARIS HONORS A ST. LOUISAN

CAPT. JOHN A. OCKERSON,
Member of the Mississippi River Commission, Honored by France.

Capt. John A. Ockerson Decorated by the French Minister of Public Instruction for Work Done at the Paris Exposition.

Capt. John A. Ockerson, a member of the Engineers' Club of St. Louis and of the Mississippi River Commission, has been decorated by M. Georges Leygues, French minister of public instruction, according to a Paris cablegram received Friday morning by the Post-Dispatch.

This honor is the direct result of the exhibit made by the Mississippi River Commission at the Paris Exhibition last year and of Capt. Ockerson's distinguished services as a member of the International Jury of Awards.

The Mississippi River Commission was awarded the grand prize for its engineering exhibit of which Capt. Ockerson had personal charge at the Exposition. This exhibit consisted mainly of a model of the great government dredgeboat, Iota, which was built at Grafton, Ill., at a cost of $125,000, and which is capable of doing the work of 180 men. It will be used for dredging the Mississippi river. The plans and specifications are the work of the commission, one of whom is Capt. Ockerson.

His residence is 4217 Washington boulevard.

Except in the First Few Minutes of the Session the Bear Element Was in Control.

The early season of strength in the wheat market was succeeded by a season of heavy liquidating stamps for a time being in order. Just before the close, however, the market displayed signs of rallying.

Modern Miller Outlook.
Complaints of the effects of hot, dry weather were received from the West, Southwest and from east of the Mississippi river, but these have been in part alleviated by rain. Reports of insect damage are increasing from parts of Kansas and the territories, and scattered reports are coming from Missouri and Illinois. In general, rain is badly needed over the entire winter wheat section. Conditions on the Pacific coast have improved. Rain has fallen in California, and the outlook is good, except on a limited acreage of late sown.

Cotton Market Was Easier.
Cotton futures in the New York market today were much easier in tone, and for a time showed heavy declines. The market was again in the local market broke below the previous closing prices.

At New York May opened 5 points down, July 3 points down, and September 5 points down.

NO TIME CAN BE LOST

PRESIDENT PHILLIPS WOULD ABANDON DISTRICT PLAN.

STREETS MUST BE IMPROVED

United States Supreme Court Has Given City Power and the World's Fair Bids Us Haste.

President Hiram Phillips of the board of public improvements believes it would be better for the city to retain the present system of special taxes for street improvements on the front foot plan, recently approved by the United States Supreme Court, than to adopt the district system, provided in the Public Welfare Commission's proposed charter amendments. Mr. Phillips said Friday:

"The city has just succeeded, after two years of controversy, in establishing beyond dispute its right to collect from property owners the cost of street improvements. While we were awaiting the decision of the Supreme Court upon the point it was impossible to proceed with any certainty, and our street system remained at a standstill. Now we know exactly where we stand, and can go ahead with street reconstruction as rapidly as the plans can be drawn and the ordinances passed.

"If a new system, such as the district system proposed in the charter amendments, should be introduced, it is almost certain that some dissatisfied person would take it into the courts, and another period of delay and uncertainty would follow, while the time of the utmost value in making World's Fair improvements would be lost. For this reason, if for no other, I am opposed to any change in our now firmly established system.

"As a matter of principle, the district system, by which the cost of improving a street is partially paid by owners of property on surrounding streets, is doubtless an equitable one. The framers of the charter amendments, acting at a time when the front-foot system was in question and when many thought it would be overthrown, acted wisely in providing a new system as a part of the amendments. But now that the front-foot system is so firmly established I believe not only that it is wise to retain it, but that it is a mistake to make a change, but that such a provision, when fully explained to the people, would work against the adoption of the amendments.

"To adopt the district system after the front-foot system has been in force would work a hardship to owners of property on improved streets, who have paid the full cost of improving their street and who would then be required to pay for the cross streets on each side of the street, from which they had received no such help. Grand avenue, for instance, I own a lot on the east side of the street, and have paid my full share for the improvement. The next intersecting street, St. Louis, is to be improved, and under the cost of this work, although the property owners on St. Louis avenue paid nothing for the improvement of Grand avenue, it is my opinion that, having a system of street improvement which should be getting our streets in shape for the World's Fair.

The charter amendments bill is at present in the hands of the Council committee on legislation.

CITY NEWS.

Crawford's people would be ashamed of themselves had they to wait until Friday ere they could enchant the people with remnants of rag babies, or any other chaff, chaffant! They do as well by the public any other day of the week as they do on Friday, which speaks volumes!

QUESTION OF BUCKETSHOPS.

A Kansas City Firm's Answer to Suit of Chicago Board of Trade.

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—The Christie Grain & Stock Co. today filed an answer to the suit brought by the Chicago Board of Trade to restrain the company from using the complaintant's quotations on the board. It is a bucket shop, the complaintant alleges that the board of trade does a similar thing, and that the bucket shop and asks the court to void the contract between the board of trade and the telegraph companies by which they give right to send quotations to such persons as the board of trade shall designate, and the defendant making the claim that the quotations belong to the public, and alleging that such contract is in violation of the interstate commerce act and the pool and trust law of Missouri.

Don't go to the train too soon, for the time has changed; the Katy Flyer now leaves Union Station at 8:32 p. m. This is the first train for the Southwest. Through sleepers and free chair cars to all important cities in the Southwest.

Attempt at Suicide Unsuccessful.

Lawrence C. Fox, manager of the Western Wall Paper Co.'s store at 143 Franklin avenue, attempted suicide by asphyxiation Thursday morning. On arriving at the store he placed a rubber tube, attached to the gas jet, in his mouth, turned on the gas and awaited the end. S. E. Comstock, an employee, came in half an hour later and found Fox unconscious. A physician was called and he revived. Fox would have placed a rubber tube in his mouth, but he was taken to his home, 235 Temple avenue. He is married and has one child. Dependence, due to fear that he would lose his position, is said to have prompted his act.

An Ocular Demonstration.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CATSKILL, N. Y., May 2.—While Prof. Lundy was hearing the science class in the laboratory of the High School today the girls were rendered hysterical by a nerve-distracting, albeit triumphant, cackle, proceeding from a dark corner of the room. A hen had entered through an open window and a nice fresh egg was the result of her visit.

PASSENGERS COMPLAIN LUSTILY CONCERNING THE REGULATIONS OF THE NEW TRANSFER SYSTEM

Confusion and Delay Are the Practical
Results of "the Most Perfect
Transfer System Ever Invented."

Patrons of the St. Louis Transit Co. who have had occasion to mix up with the new transfer system inaugurated Thursday, are inclined to believe that General Superintendent Grant was joking when he pronounced the system the most perfect ever invented.

If the system were intended to confuse and worry the public, it was certainly a success on the first day of its application. The most prolific cause of complaint is the new rule compelling a passenger to traverse the line to which he desires a transfer at any given point.

Where formerly it was possible to transfer at a given point, Sixth, Eighth, tenth streets, or any other thoroughfare traversed by two or more lines, taking the first car that came, passengers must now wait for some particular car. To illustrate: A gentleman living on Washington avenue, near Garrison, took a car early Thursday morning to go to Union Station. He asked for a transfer to Eleventh street and was told to designate which car he wanted.

"The first one that comes along," he said, "I'm only going to Union Station, and furthermore, I have no time to lose. I can only transfer you to one line," said the conductor, and he arbitrarily lected the Park avenue line for the passenger's accommodation.

The passenger was compelled to wait on the corner until an Eighteenth street and a Compton Heights car passed, either of which would have taken him to his destination, before a Park avenue car have in sight.

Returning, he asked for a transfer to Washington avenue, and was given one by the Delmar line. Not only were the Page and Taylor avenue cars in greater profusion than the Delmar, but when one finds a waiting transfer holders could not board it, but got on a Taylor avenue car and forced the conductor to accept their Delmar transfers.

The same thing happened hundreds of times at this intersection and also at Olive and Delmar. Many passengers were compelled to wait. Many passengers were footed it to Union Station and abused the company.

The most profitable cause of complaint is the new rule compelling a passenger to traverse the line to which he desires a transfer at any given point.

BIG FIRE AT ARMOUR & CO.'S

Live Cattle, Awaiting Slaughter, Were Saved With Difficulty.

Damages Were $100,000, but 1600

CHICAGO, May 3.—Armour & Co.'s beef house, one of the largest buildings at the stock yards, caught fire at 6:30 o'clock this morning and was damaged by flames and water to the extent of $100,000. On the fourth floor, awaiting slaughter, were 1600 head of live cattle, which were rescued with great difficulty. The building is a five-story brick and extends nearly a block. The building also contained 400 carcasses of dressed beef.

A single alarm was turned in at first, but the fire made such rapid headway that this was followed by a general alarm. Soon after a special call for additional engines was sent in and after an hour and a half of desperate work the firemen succeeded in conquering the flames.

One hundred men under the direction of Chief Swenke, were at work on the third and fourth floors when a large amount of pipe burst and the stifling odor which arose drove the men from their posts to the open air. Many were half blinded by the gas, and escaped with difficulty.

Indemnity Which China Will Be Called Upon to Pay Over to the Powers.

PARIS, May 3.—The French foreign office corrects the figures of the indemnity to be demanded from China, as called to the foreign office by M. Pichon, the French minister at Peking, purporting to be taken from the report of the committee on indemnity and telegraphed to the Associated Press May 1.

It was then announced that the amount China is to pay was fixed at 1,850,000,000 francs. The foreign office now announces that the amount should have been 1,550,000,000 francs, about $250,000,000. However, this amount yet may be reduced. These figures provide for expenses up to July 1.
